Dear Tony

I received your sad letter and I am sorry if I, in any way, have contributed to the disappointment that you may feel. However, if you look at the circumstances of those nine weeks, you have been away for several and I have also been on holidays as well.

However, during that time I have prayed for you and you were very much on my heart when you rang in Brisbane and I was going to contact you as soon as I returned from holidays, but seeing we had discussed things on the phone, I thought that would possibly be sufficient. However, I apologise for not contacting you in writing.

When Philip and I met with you in Sydney, we pointed out to you on that occasion that the support mechanism for your life would come from [redacted] and [redacted] and the local church as we were too far away to be effective and from what I understand, they have been doing that very effectively. Thank God for wonderful friends such as they have been to you.

The Lord will not forget your labour of love for Him and the gospel and I am sure you will see His provision in the future as you totally commit your life to your family and to holy living. He never fails and even though this is rather a dark patch in your life, He wants you to keep your eyes on Him so that you may come forth as gold and be a shining example and testimony to others who have been through similar struggles as you.

May the Lord bless you.

Your brother in Christ,

Andrew
